Entropy is not what it used to be.

“Everything is alive; what we call dead is an abstraction.”

Physicist David Bohm

Retrocausality

a place/ where in the past was a lake/ now all dried up/ dark clouds hover above

Thought Experiment

If I was me before but somehow changed, what am I now, how do I affect the surrounding space? How does that space affect your memory of me?

the future can affect the present

My future is making room for me/and I'm trying to remember
What actually is important/ what do I really need/ save for later
I can't focus/ my thoughts all over the place so I don't grab anything and just leave it to chance/ that maybe it'll still be around there for me but right now I don't know where to begin/
In the mist of the floating subjects of my life
Blinking in and out of existence around me, I start confusing space
Are they against me?

These delusions of space and matter/my future supplies a dream state
I am wondering how to wake up.

After coming out of a deep struggle that was winter/ everything felt real urgent and loud with the stench of humans pretending to exist

I mean co-exist with each other/

The season was hard on my eyes I could hardly open them

Somehow the passing currents guided me here

to the shore of my own ocean

It's too bright / the sun shining on me/ phre energy/

I am nurture and its effect on nature/photosynthesis/

the present can affect the past

I've been known to be caught in a vortex of digging space between matter/
Struggling to be careful in the present /an opportunity to correct my errors and even though I continually do/ I create a paradox

a time warping of feelings and lust /so many feelings/
I fall victim to imaginary space, I am trying to remember/ was it a dream?

Did I wake up late/ to meet myself and when I finally arrive/learn that I was never there?

Discovery.

I was never there.

I was never fucking there and now it all makes sense.

Like the whole thing was a mirage.

Just me talking to myself.

A spell that I was working on.

I'm done with that now.

No more.

Predictive Coding

#pataphysics #speculativescience #experimentalmetaphysics

To perceive the world is to anticipate it (automatic memory). Brain waves store knowledge about the world and probability of one state of events following another to generate a prediction (see: Darwinism). What we perceive is determined by what we know, and vice versa; feedback loop-type action exists to validate prediction.

GET THIS: There is no year, no history, no past, just stories. Everything we think we know are all just memes. We can never get at the source. Everything is a building metaphor. We define phenomenon by metaphor because essence is expressed in terms we can observe and articulate. Yet, we can never get at what a thing is, in and of itself, its source within its own existence and on its own terms, without reference to some other thing, some thing outside the thing itself to give it contrast, definition against the backdrop of the black nothingness of mystery that is contained by the essence of everything unknown. We are things against a background, a sea of other things, which give the thing in focus its context, its difference.

Even these words abstract the notion, as all things are abstracted and far removed. We build more metaphors into language over top of the old ones and metaphors become like stones. Or like memes, self-perpetuating/self-referencing/self-replenishing in its origin memory.

The creation of language is literally hyperbole (hyper = beyond; ballo = to throw) and metaphor (meta = over, across; pherein = to carry, bear). We take practical action words and build metaphor on top of metaphor, trading things in and out, "branching off" until the metaphor becomes the thing itself.

Language builds up the world in images, makes things interchangeable with action, and allows action to hide behind language. You are activating the energy of the act embedded/hidden in the word without actually carrying out the physical action. Language sets us up for phantom actions, which is why the question of what means more, actions or words, is quite often rendered moot because words are actions, taken "literally," once stripped bare by its own etymology.

Word magic is a short cut to reality alteration.

Temporal Illusions

the prototype of all conceived times the system has failed you/ left to retreat inside a virtual matrix/ coffins of data flickering against the grid of a unknown sky/ we speak no new nothingness and know only the predestination of sound

decoherence

aint no justice only sorrow
the acknowledgment of sorrow
is the first step towards justice
i coughed up an epitaph
my greatest work

irreversible entanglements

in a world were color is anti-black and the rainbow is met with a cohesive interference a collapsing light is swallowing the lessons of the system

telescoping errors

heat escaped bodies
would not hold
the sun started to burn them

universal wavefunctions

exist in the hood behind the walls
inside of high-rise brick buildings blocked by highways
under the innocence of fear running home from school
with bullet holes in your body blood in your mouth decreasing the time duration in order to watch you magnified on a petri dish in a laboratory called America

timescales/suprachiamatic

you see my degrees of freedom
my systems absorbed and disturbed by my environment
a mirage maybe or density matrix

atomic mirror

i will only provide adam's reflection absorb all water and electricity
one day during the freezing of selves
we will see our quantum reflection

Wave/Function/Collapse | Quantum Decoherence

Wave function collapse – the reduction of the physical possibilities (of a state) into a single possibility as seen by an observer.

Quantum decoherence - the mechanism by which the classical limit emerges out of a quantum starting point and determines the location of the quantum classical boundary. Decoherence occurs when a system interacts with its environment in a thermodynamically irreversible way, preventing different elements in the quantum superposition of the system environment's wave function from interfering with each other.

(global/universal wavefunction)

It can be viewed as the loss of information from a system into the environment, since every system is loosely coupled with the energetic state of its surroundings. Decoherence does not generate the actual wave function collapse, however. It only provides an explanation for the appearance of it, as the quantum nature of the system leaks into the environment, so that a total superposition of the wavefunction still exists, but beyond the realm of measurement

In 1996, collapse of quantum superposition into a single definite state was quantitatively measured

In July 2011, researchers at the University of British Columbia were able to reduce environmental decoherence rate to levels far below the threshold necessary for quantum info processing by applying high magnetic fields

A/Fascicle/Unwoven/Plot | Machete Unconquered

Is it a physical phenomenon in its own right, or just an epiphenomenon of another process (i.e. gravity)?
state and field in which it occurs both put into a superposition of two states

Every collapsing wave function produces a different reality. Reality as we experience it picks its way through the near infinite possibilities.

(present reality)

Decoherence represents an extremely fast process for macroscopic objects, since these are interacting with many microscopic objects within an enormous number of degrees of freedom in their natural environments. This explains why we tend not to observe quantum behavior in everyday objects. Decoherence time is extremely short for everyday macroscopic processes.

What sorts of decisions/states trigger a split world/universe? Are these worlds superimposed? How to access the layers?

(inconsistent histories)

What time is it back there in the past?
